

MARGARET LUNANI: DAUGHTER-IN-LAW.

I have had the privilege of knowing Kuka for the last fifty years. Thirty of these as his daughter-in-law. While growing up in my homestead, we referred to him as 'Papa Nyikuli', a reference that is still used to date. He merited that honor because he was my dad's Bible teacher.

I will miss him dearly because of the way he embraced me when I joined his family. He became my friend and confidant. He ensured that he practiced Bible principles by refusing to submit to customs that degrade daughters-in-law. I had a very good relationship with him. Together with my mother-in-law, they loved my children and actively participated in nurturing them. I will forever be grateful to them.

I will miss the way he loved my cooking, especially chapatis, chicken, fish and cakes. It always gave me a lot of satisfaction and pleasure to watch him enjoying my cakes. I ominously noticed that something was amiss when he did not find the usual pleasure in the chocolate cake that I last baked for him.

Jehovah's promise of the near future when we shall receive our dead loved ones strengthens our hope of having great times together again with him (Hosea 13 :14).
